Urges Greater Capital

WOMAN STIRS BUSINESS MEN

Warns: "You'll Be Sorry"

Mrs. Jenness-Miller Says European War Should Make Washington the Center of Culture and Commerce.

By MILDRED DILLON.

To make Washington the international capital and the social, political and commercial mecca of the world is the plan undertaken by Mrs. Anna Jenness-Miller, a Washington woman.

Mrs. Jenness-Miller, who has given more than 11,000 lectures in the United States

"I propose that a public forum be built where the people of the city may go to hear lectures, see art displays, and attend national conventions, and where they might mingle for discussions without the formality of introductions. At the English gathering it is quite improper to introduce," Mrs. Jenness-Miller explained. "Every one who is in attendance is presumably a lady and a gentleman, and so I should like to see the plan adopted in Washington," she said.

Mrs. Jenness-Miller also proposed that tea houses, which she explained might city for a fee, but have some heart-felt interest in its enhancement.

"Washington can be made the first city on clothes reform and culture, and who was the first woman to take a stand against popular fashion in the years when iron corsets, weighty bustles and other unhealthy fashions were in vogue, has always stood for the civic betterment of Washington and has aided in every movement that tended toward its advancement.

At a special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday Mrs. Miller unfolded her ideas for a greater Washington and told the members how they might successfully be carried out. She offered to go on the stump for its cause.

"The sentiment for a greater Washington must be aroused before any plan, however tentative, can be carried out," said Mrs. Jenness-Miller. "Let me say that, as a stakeholder in your city, I have not the sole aim of the professional itinerant lecturer who will advertise any of the world, but only through advertisement," said the woman lecturer.

sound of small consequence to the business man, he placed in Rock Creek Park, on the Potomac driveway, and in other public thoroughfares, as an educational and social factor of the Capital.

"Let the wealth of the country be spent in Washington," she said. "This is our one chance, while war rages in the popular European countries, to make this the center of advanced civilization and culture. Washington is the logical capital of the world, and if we do not take advantage of the opportunity you now have to develop it—well, I shall be very sorry for you, gentlemen."

M. D. Rosenberg made a motion that President G.D. select a committee to formulate plans for a greater Washington campaign. The following Chamber of Commerce members were named: George White, chairman; B. H. Earnshaw, Claude E. Miller, W. J. Kehoe, and J. B. Henderson.

dam. They were in Germany, Mrs. Frank was a Washington girl and will spend some time here before returning to her home in Richmond.

ASQUITH ASKS ENGLAND FOR 500,000 TROOPS

Additional Forces to Be Placed in Various Departments of Military Establishment.

NEEDED TO SUCCEED IN WAR

London, Sept. 10.—Premier Asquith today asked Parliament to increase the size of the regular army by authorizing the addition of 500,000 men. These forces will be added to the various departments of the military establishment, artillery, cavalry and infantry.

The request of the premier was in accordance with his declaration that all of England's resources would be used in carrying to a successful termination the war with Germany. If the additional 500,000 men are found insufficient he will request more troops.

Later in the session Premier Asquith received a report from Lord Kitchener on the enlistment up to noon today. He then made this announcement:

"The latest news of recruiting is encouraging. Four hundred and thirty-eight thousand men, exclusive of territorials, have joined the army since the declaration of war. The time has not arrived to relax our efforts, however. We must have more men."

England must prosecute this war with all possible vigor. Though we shall have a regular army of more than 1,000,000 men when the increase the government has asked is made, it may be necessary to call for still more."

The premier admitted that the present barracks might not be able to care for this great army, but added:

"We shall take care of the recruits, however. If they cannot receive barracks accommodations they will be allowed 2 shillings daily."

POPE TO TAKE STEPS TO END EUROPEAN WAR

First Encyclical of Benedict XV Probably Will Be Issued Next Week.

Rome, Sept. 10.—The first encyclical of Pope Benedict XV, which will urge a termination of the warfare now rending Europe, probably will be issued next week. In the meantime, the cardinals who attended the conclave here will have reached their homes and used their utmost endeavors to influence the governments of the warring nations to adopt a receptive attitude.

It is understood that the encyclical will appeal for an armistice, during which various plans for peace may be considered.

In 1913 American universities had 4,222 students from foreign lands.
